Politically, it was a wet day for Senator Pendleton when he framed the civil service bill.

The democrats have really fallen in love with Dorsey. He is giving them all the cheer they have this year.

Judge Hooley will make no more speeches this campaign, and then he can't be charged with his own defeat.

They have at last found ground enough for state fair conveniences in Rhoads Island, and accordingly a fair will be held there this fall.

The women have one point against the men this time. Of the 76,000 idiots in the United States, 45,000 are males while only 31,000 are females.

The earthquake that will give the Ohio democrats a stunning blow, will take place on the 23 of October. The rumbling can be heard long before that day.

Since Mr. Tilden began to have fun with his hired yacht, he is increasing in weight. For a national convention it is about 125, and he will get this without trouble. He has got up to 108 already.

When a republican is caught stealing and the party attempts to punish him, he gets mad, and quits the party; but the democrats take him in, put him on the back, give him all he wants to drink, and call him a good fellow.

The Rev. Thomas K. Beecher, brother of Henry Ward Beecher, has been nominated by the greenbackers of New York for secretary of state. A man who has such loose ideas about finance, believing in a currency that will cheat the owner of it, is not a safe man to preach religion.

The New York Sun is still crying that the republicans must go. That has been the cry of the democrats for twenty-three years, and still the party is here, and is here to stay. So long as the republican party is better than the democratic party, the people will not let it go.

The speculations are conflicting as to what kind of a winter we are going to have. One day the prophets tell us that it will be mild. Another day other prognosticators say that it will be a severe one. But when the winter has passed, nine chances out of ten it will have proved itself to be about the fair thing.

Says the Chicago Times: "The Iowa republicans are said to be deserting their party in droves, and the defections are already so large that the [democrats] have high hopes of carrying the state. The prohibition rumpus is what is making all the trouble." That is always the cry when the democrats get in a bad corner, and is an indication that the republicans will sweep the state with a big majority.

It is said by the papers that like to deal in extravagant gossip, that President Arthur calls Secretary Lincoln "Bob," and in return "Bob" addresses the president as "Chet." It may be interesting to read of such familiarity between two friends, and while the thing is purely gossip, there are thousands who would be led to believe, if the newspapers said so, that the young secretary of war, though the son of a president, would triflingly joke with the man who holds the highest political position on earth, and call him "Chet."

There is considerable force in the argument used by many advocates of temperance, that the needed reform cannot be effected by long speeches and numerous resolutions. The Brooklyn Eagle thinks that earnest and persistent work of individuals is the key to success, and that "honest and capable advocates of pure reform are very much needed, but not so much as orators upon our platforms or otherwise in public life, as in the work of men and women in their own homes, about their own duties, in their own proper spheres."

The Milwaukee exposition opened on Thursday evening, and will continue until October 20, being open each day except Sundays. It is said that the exhibits will be more varied than in previous years, and in many respects very much better. Milwaukee has succeeded admirably with its exhibitions, which is a credit to the enterprise of that city. We understand that the art department is as complete as in any former years which is saying a good deal. In this respect the exhibition has been much better than the one in Chicago, at least that is the judgment of very many art critics. We hope the people of the state will liberally patronize the Milwaukee exposition. It deserves the largest attendance that can possibly be given.

It is rumored that Mrs. A. T. Stewart has bequeathed all her property to Judge Hilton, who was Mrs. Stewart's private secretary and confidential adviser. The judge served the great merchant with remarkable fidelity, and when the latter died he gave his faithful servant two million dollars in cash and other property; and it is said that the story straight, when Mrs. Stewart dies, he will receive all the way from thirty to fifty millions. In answer to this the Chicago Journal remarks: "If this be so it is to be hoped that when he gets possession of the estate he will be able to scrape enough together to pay the taxes claimed by the city of Chicago as due from the Stewart branch-house, as that was located here."

The milk question is again being discussed in New York. It has been discussed for years, and time and time again it has been demonstrated that the milk used by a majority of the people in New York city is absolutely unfit for human beings to drink. It comes from cows that are fed on the rotten refuse of breweries and distilleries, and every particle of cream that can possibly be taken from the milk is taken before the milk is sold in the city. The board of health of New York, has passed upon the milk question times without number. They have published the manifesto often that the milk is actually poisonous and one of the chief causes of so much fearful mortality among children during the summer.

But what profit is all this? The milkmen keep on furnishing just such milk, the people continue to buy it just the same, and children die of it as they have in the past. There does not seem to be any reform in store for this kind of business. The stupidity of the people and the mercenary spirit of those who sell the milk, cheat reform out of its dues.

The Gazette has frequently said that Frank James would be acquitted by a Missouri jury, and he has been. This is hardly to be wondered at in a state like Missouri. When the prosecuting attorney asked the very important question, "Is the arm of the law or the arm of Frank James, the bandit, the stronger in Missouri?" the jury promptly responded that the arm of the bandit was the stronger. When the verdict was announced, the town of Gallatin shouted itself hoarse with gladness. When such a sentiment as this exists in Missouri it is time for the people to give a little serious reflection to the question as to whether their lives or their money can be made reasonably safe in that state. As a murderer and a robber, he had no superior on this continent except probably in his brother Jesse, and that he should be allowed to march through the streets of Gallatin a free man with such a load of crime resting upon him, is one of the strangest things of the time, and one of the saddest commentaries on our civilization. He has sided in murder and robbery in Minnesota, now let us see whether he can be taken from Missouri on a requisition from the governor of Minnesota.

The political accountants who brought forth the Arthur boom six weeks ago and now measure on account of its premature appearance. It was a lovely and lively infant for a week or ten days, but it came into this wicked world almost six months too soon. —Chicago Journal.

Making presidential booms seem to be the chief business of a good many politicians and newspapers. They seek public notice themselves by dragging the name of this man or that one before the people as a candidate for the presidency. Of course there is nothing more shallow than a premature boom for the presidency. It is created to-day and destroyed to-morrow, and the victim becomes the laughing stock of the public. By this method the democrats are making political burial of one candidate a month, and likely this will continue till their national convention next year.

As to President Arthur, the more sensible way would be to let him alone. He is a rare gentleman in very many respects, and an exceedingly popular president, and if his friends by too much puffing and over-much "booming" do not kill him off, he will probably be the next republican candidate. He will suffer nothing by being let alone. He will become stronger by it, for the wisdom of his own acts will do more to win the confidence of the people than all the puffing newspapers and orators can give him.

The Evening Wisconsin, which too frequently tries to be out and cunning at the expense of its reputation, is answered on one point by the Beloit Free Press, as follows:

The Evening Wisconsin, a paper published at Beloit, a town on the lake shore, referring to the fact that the president goes direct to Washington from Chicago, remarks: "All about his rural richness visiting the Madison state park and the Milwaukee exposition, was the merest gossip." There may be cunning and cunning somewhere hidden in the above sentence, but they don't lie in the phrases "his rural richness" and the "state park show." When a paper putting out as many lies as the Evening Wisconsin, indulges in such cheap, very cheap flings at an institution in the service of which so many citizens of the state are so deeply interested, it is no wonder that the "Milwaukee" is only a "two-glass-ver-vice-cent" city any day.

During the past few months the Evening Wisconsin has sadly fallen from grace. It used to be considered by newspaper readers of both parties, a fair spirited and ably conducted journal, and it enjoyed the respect of the public. But lately, it seems to have lost its former common sense and honorable standing, and therefore the criticisms of the Beloit Free Press, the Milwaukee Sentinel, the Madison Democrat, and other papers, on the conduct of the Evening Wisconsin, are not untimely. Every newspaper should try to build up every worthy state enterprise, and not attempt to tear it down. It should first be thoroughly fair and judicious, and then as cute and cunning as common decency will permit, but it should never be managed in an editorial way so as to disgust intelligent people nor make its editors tools for their pains or knaves for their purpose.

The True Test.

If a man is hungry within an hour more or less after a meal he is dyspeptic, it shows his stomach is not able to dispose of what he has eaten, but to eat again, and thus impose more work, is absurdity. Take Dr. Jones' Red Clover Tonic which cures dyspepsia, and all stomach, liver, kidney and bladder troubles. It is a perfect tonic, appetizer, blood purifier, a sure cure for acute and chronic diseases. Price 50 cents, of Stearns & Baker.

AN IOWA TRAGEDY.

A Farmer 70 Years Old Distinguishes Himself

By a Savage Assault on His Wife, 50 Years Old, With a Knife—Stabbed in Six Places.

BURLINGTON, Iowa, Sept. 7.—Another bloody tragedy has been added to the category of crime in Des Moines county, the actors being Joseph Crone, an Englishman, by occupation farmer, and aged 70 years, and his wife, Margaret Crone, about 50 years of age. The scene of the tragedy is in Pleasant Grove township, this county, about fifteen miles from this city. The full particulars of the affair have not been received. According to Mrs. Crone's anti-mortem statement it is to the following effect: Mr. Crone, who slept upstairs got up at 10 o'clock at night and came into the apartments of Mrs. Crone from the land. He was angry and his wife was sleeping on a lounge. He asked his wife to get up and throw his knife at him, and she exclaimed: "I am going to put you to rest." She begged pitifully that her life might be spared, and he retorted, "I will kill you," at the same time making a lunge at her with his knife and stabbing her in the shoulder. The unfortunate woman was stabbed in six different places. One cut was above the left eye, which extended around and down upon the cheek. There was an ugly gash on the left shoulder. Her arms and hands were shockingly mutilated. There was a cut upon the stomach and a gash eight inches in length across the bowels, from which the intestines protruded. The on counter must have been a desperate one, for Mrs. Crone, in grasping the knife, as it is supposed, had one of her fingers severed from the hand. The bedclothing, soaked with the life blood of Mrs. Crone, was scattered all about the room. Mrs. Crone finally escaped from the clutches of the bloodthirsty wretch, and grouping her way in darkness to the room of her husband's daughter, which was adjoining hers, was admitted. She finally escaped from the premises and made her way on her hands and knees in the darkness to the residence of a neighbor, Mrs. Anderson, about a quarter of a mile distant. From her home, she succeeded in arousing the slumbering members of the household, and was given the best attention and treatment time and circumstances permitted. After Mrs. Crone had left the place, Crone, his son-in-law, Frank McKinney, and his wife left the house and went to the house of Tom Titcher, and after remaining several hours, started for Burlington to give themselves up to the authorities. On the arrival of the police station, and after Crone had been placed under arrest, McKinney left, stating he was going out to feed his horses, but nothing since has been seen of him in Burlington, and it is presumed he has returned home. It is asserted he was in the room when the assault was committed and refused to lend assistance. He will be arrested for complicity in the murder as soon as he can be found by the officers. His manners and actions betrayed anxiety. It is still further ascertained that fears of lynching by an outraged community impelled and prompted Crone to come to Burlington and deliver himself up to the authorities. Mrs. Crone at last accounts was gradually failing, and her recovery is impossible. Crone is a gray bearded man, about six feet tall. He refused to talk about the affair, but occasionally made remarks about his wife, saying she only married him for money, that she had tried to poison him, and that he would rather live in hell than with her. Crone's first wife died about two years ago, and he married his victim about two years since, she being at the time a widow. Her former husband was Ned Kelly, a farmer in Washington township, this county, who died some years ago.

DIVERSION OF FREIGHTS.

Commissioner Moore Obeys the Injunction.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—There were no new developments yesterday in the injunction suit brought by Messrs. Gallup, Clark & Co., against the Grand Trunk road to prevent diversion of freight. Commissioner Moore issued the following circular letter: "An injunction having been granted by the circuit court of Cook county, restraining the Chicago & Grand Trunk railway from interfering with or diverting any of the business of Gallup, Clark & Co., and it is hereby given that until further orders shipments to the order of above firm are to be delivered by western roads to the eastern road to which consigned."

Mr. Clark of the firm of Gallup, Clark & Co., was seen during the day in regard to the injunction. He said that the firm had notified the railroad company several times that it could not allow its freight to be diverted as it was injurious to the firm's interests. Mr. Reeves, of the Grand Trunk road, told him that the company was powerless to act as it desired, it being bound by the rules of the pool. Most of the freight shipped by the firm was consigned to York, England and Boston, but did not there, it being sent to points near the above and taking the common route. So when the shipments were diverted they had to be reshipped to the final destination at some expense and loss of time.

Cox and the Speakership.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 7.—The Enquirer's Washington special says: Hon. S. C. Cox, of New York, is in the city completing the details of the purchase of a house. He is not now disposed to be communicative touching the speakership other than to affirm his confidence in his chances of election. He denies, however, with forcible rhetoric, that he has made an alliance with Carlisle, or that any communication has been made him from any quarter looking to such alliance. Mr. Cox says of his canvass that he has the bulk of his own state delegation behind him, substantial support in Ohio and most gratifying advices from Wisconsin, Michigan and Missouri. Mr. Cox further says that in no quarter has he ever belittled the canvass of Mr. Randall, but on the contrary has kept aloof from antagonizing, save honorably, any of the other candidates.

Judge Devens Declines.

BOSTON, Sept. 7.—Judge Devens publishes a letter declining to be a candidate for reelection with the Republican gubernatorial nomination. Ex-Gov. Talbot, having written a similar one, the only two prominent mentioned candidates are Hon. Henry J. Pierce and Hon. George D. Robinson. The latter gentleman in conversation said that he could not afford to be governor and does not want to leave congress, but will accept a nomination if he is the man to lead Butler. Mr. Pierce is only just back from Europe and has not looked the ground over, and therefore will not talk.

Too Much Married.

CHICAGO, Sept. 7.—Alfred Patowski, a laborer, is under bonds on a charge of bigamy, having two wives already and being on the point of taking another when he was arrested.

IRON AND STEEL INTEREST.

John Jarrett Before the Senate Committee on Labor

New York, Sept. 7.—The senate committee on labor and education resumed its sessions.

John Jarrett, president of the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers of Pennsylvania, said he had been engaged twenty-five years in the iron industry of Pennsylvania. The association of which he was the head was composed of employees of iron and steel rolling mills. The object of the association was to secure the moral, social, mental and financial improvement of its members, and bring about conditions whereby the rights of workmen were recognized, and that they got a fair day's wages for a fair day's work. There were many mills in Pennsylvania that work not under the control of the union. In these the rate of wages was invariably lower than in the union mills. There have been numerous strikes before the supremacy of the union was acknowledged by manufacturers. Among the members of a new organization there was always a feeling of distrust of the union. Now the method of arbitration was pursued largely with satisfactory results. Representative workmen and manufacturers met once a year, and decided on a scale of prices and wages. The ironworkers were in favor of protection, because it protected them in their wages. Protection did not increase the price of steel, but it did not exist there would be no employment for the iron and steel workers. In some mills, which are not under the control of the union, the workmen are paid the same wages as those in English manufacturing. Mr. Jarrett, in answer to Senator Call, said the man who sold his iron at $10 per ton less than his competitor and disposed of four times the quantity of his competitor would be able to pay better wages, but the trouble would be to make him exercise his ability in this respect. The laboring classes should be compelled to attend schools and the government should appropriate means to carry out a system of public education. Mr. Jarrett said if the industry of tin-plate manufacture was carried on in this country it would employ 4,000 men. The ore could be obtained from California and Australia as cheaply as England could obtain it from her own mines. Under the present tariff rates tin-plate manufacture could not be carried on. The interest was connected intimately with iron working. Tin-plate manufacture was attempted a year ago in Pennsylvania, but failed on account of the reduction of the tariff. England can produce plates at $1 a box. It cannot be done here at any such prices. Seventeen million dollars was paid to English manufacturers last year by American merchants for this commodity. The plates are used in the manufacture of all tin utensils. The tariff should be increased so that American manufacturers could afford to pay the wages of men engaged in the industry.

THROUGH THE RAPIDS.

A Miniature Maid of the Mist Sent Through the Whirlpool Below Niagara Falls.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The Herald's Buffalo special says: The imitation of the old steamship Maid of the Mist was sent through the whirlpool rapids below Niagara Falls in the presence of 10,000 spectators. Excursions were run on all railroads centering at the falls, both from the states and Canada. There was much criticism on account of the whole affair being turned into an advertising medium. It was said that the scheme was gotten up for the benefit of the hackmen and hotel-keepers, but the advertising privilege of the boat was bought by a patent medicine dealer of Lockport. The little craft was rigged up to represent the original Maid of the Mist, which was piloted safely through the rapids in 1801. At 8:20 p. m., Buffalo time, the boat was towed out into the stream and cut loose at about the point where Capt. Webb started on his fatal swim. She went swiftly down the stream and when reaching the rapids was dashed about like a small boat in a rough sea, but kept her course safely through, carrying on as usual during several minutes. She reached the whirlpool in about three minutes from the time she struck the rough water. Then she floated around and gradually worked to the Canadian shore, remaining in the whirlpool about twenty minutes. After reaching the shore she was secured and her flags taken off, after which she was pushed out into the stream, and floated down the river some distance when she was taken in tow by some boys and tied up at the Lewiston dock.

THOMAS HUGHES.

The Author of "Rugby," Tenn., Visiting His Colony.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Thomas Hughes, "Tom Brown," arrived here by the steamer ship Bohemia. At the Windsor hotel Mr. Hughes said: "The object of my visit to this country is to visit my mother, who lives at the Rugby colony, in Tennessee, with my brother, Hastings Hughes, and I wish also to take a look at the colony and see how they are prospering. This is my second visit to Rugby. There are seven English gentlemen going with me who have become interested in the colony, and are going down there to look it over with a view of settling there and investing some of their money in the enterprise. All the reports from them are most favorable, and I hope to be able to give you a good account of the community's progress on my return. My visit will be a short one, I must be in England in October to attend my duties as county judge, a position that I have filled for a year."

Miscegenation in North Carolina.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Sept. 7.—Much excitement and bad feeling has been caused in Rockingham and several of the adjacent counties by cases of white women running off and marrying negro men. Two white girls, Mary Loran and Sarah Laco, one of them very comely, deliberately left their homes with coal-black negroes. The parents and brother of the girls got on the track of the fugitives, and armed with shot guns, pursued them hotly for a few hours. The race was life and death. The brother of one of the girls got within 100 yards of her. She was riding behind her dusky lover on the same horse, which he was lurching. The brother hailed them, and raised his gun to shoot the negro, but desisted for fear of killing his sister. They were better mounted, and the horse with the double load distanced the pursuers. One of the gentle couple was arrested on the outskirts of Rockingham, and there is now strong talk of lynching the man. Nine cases of this kind have occurred in six months, and all in the same section of the county, white women in each case running off with negro men.

Railroad Sold at Auction.

MISSISSIPPI, Sept. 7.—The Mississippi Valley & Ship Island railroad was sold under a foreclosure of mortgage and purchased by J. B. Howes, of New York, for $27,000. It is believed Howes represents the bondholders, who thus get a clear title. It is stated no change will be made in the construction or working of the road.

N. H. Down's Elixir is the oldest and best cough remedy in existence. Sold by Stearns & Baker.
